The committee on resolutions then offered the following series, embodying some of the principal items presented by the Convention to the schools of the country:

And they still had the audacity to sit during the days intervening to Friday, passing upon such bills as the one we publish to-day from FrankCooley, and the mack mayor. Of course, the new court will decide upon these bills, and pending their decision, the county Treasurer has no authority to pay money on the order of a defunct, a dead and buried body.

STRANGE — Mr. Market-Master Emde, on the morning ofter the result of our election was known, notified Mr. Henry Maeey to remove his meats from a vacant stall adjoining the one rented by him, in accordance, as he said, with an order of the City Council. Since the building of the market it has ever been usual and allowable for stall renters to thus use vacant stalls adjoining; and it is a little curious that this order should happen just at this time, and equally curious because there was not the least possible use for the stall, no one desting it for business. Unless this strange thing is accounted for by the occupant, Mr. Macey, having voted the Conerting of the City Council within the time specified.
